Hohenheim Summer School 2026

ECONOMICS OF CLIMATE CHANGE: MANAGING, MITIGATING, MODERATING

Based on an interdisciplinary lecture programme, the UHOH Summer School 2026 will provide insights which will cover the latest research and applications on economics of climate change. In doing so, participants will be able to develop and discuss their own thoughts on issues regarding the transformation towards a sustainable future on an individual, organizational, and societal level.

What is the Summer School about?

The Economics of Climate Change summer school explores how economic thinking can guide effective responses to one of the defining challenges of our time. Participants will learn how markets, incentives, and policy instruments shape climate outcomes. The programme bridges global and local perspectives and considers the roles of diverse stakeholders, including businesses, policymakers, and civil society. Combining theory, empirical evidence, and field trips, the summer school prepares future economists and decision-makers to design strategies for managing, mitigating, and mobilising responses to climate change.
